The loan collection of Elizabethan relics to the show is increasing rapidly. The contributors comprise the Duke of Devonshire, and the Earl of Pembroke, the latter lending a suit worn by Anne de Montmorency. Her assistants have dubbed Mrs. Cornwallis West "Commander," which is a tribute to her American energy.

His Play Is "Booed."

His Play Is "Booed,"

Although the threatened coal strike has been the most important topic of the week, Londoners have been talking a great deal of many other things. The "booing" by the gallery of Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's play, "The-Mind-the-Paint Girl," at its first performance on February 17, is still engerly discussed. Sir Arthur has sent a letter to the newspapers asking the critics to witness another performance of the play, as the "booing" throughout the first night made it impossible for the company to give the presentation in an adequate manner. Sir Arthur declares that the induignoed in personalities ascribed to him was "not intended by me, but were fastened on me by others." Nevertheless, the theatra-going world knows that Pinero is the most autocratic author in the country. He insists on being satisfied with every slight detail.

Sight detail.

Every first-nighter who was present at the opening performance recognized a taithful imitation of Connie Ediss, in the character of the musical comedy star's vulgar mother, while the actress who portrayed the vulgar, mercenary, empty-headed dancing girl might have been a twin sister of the musical comedy idel. Gabrielle Ray. Not only was har make-up and mannerisms an exact copy, but her Christian name is Gabrielle. Moreover, other characters in the play suggested well-known theatrical people to the audience. The hostite demonstration is generally believed to have been carefully organized.

Building Aviation Fleet.

Great Britain contemplates competing with France and Germany in building up an aviation fleet. It is expected that the forthcoming estimates will contain a liberal provision for the purchase of deroplanes. Ten have already been ordered, and before the summer the army will possess from twenty-four to thirty, which will be built to meet the requirements of the army. The activity of Europe in this direction is shown by the announcement of M Milerand, the French Minister of War, that $4,400.000 will be expended for aviation during the coming year, and that Germany intends to increase her expenditures for this purpose from $3,200,400. Captain Von Simon, a retired Ger-ditures for this purpose from $3,200,90 to $3,700,000.

Captain Von Simon a retired German naval officer who is engaged in the manufacture of Perseval dirigible airships, is in London in connection with the forthcoming army contracts.
He said that while aeroplanes are included in their military requirements. Germany, Austria and Russia are putting faith in the dirigibles.
Japan has ordered a dirigible airship of 7,300 cubic metres, which is 10 be delivered in March. The captain asserts that the objection to the dirigible airship, that it is unable to ascend quickly, has been overcome.
The latest model rises 5,400 feet in less than fiften minutes, which is faster than anything an aeroplane can do in that line. One airship traveled from Bitterfield to Cologne and return this week in sixteen hours, which is faster than the time made by an express train.

GRIM REMINDERS

They Are Now Stored in Rough Boxes at the Military Academy.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Washington, February 24.—Full of interesting American history is the plan of the House Committee on Naval Affairs and a number of patriotic citizens throughout the country, properly to preserve a large number of trophy flags now stored in common, rough wooden boxes at the United States Military Academy, where moths and lack of attention are playing an im-portant part in hastening their de-struction struction.

There are 13 such flags, most of which have been taken in battle, and are solemn reminders of the grim days of the past. It is proposed to preserve them, in whatever way may be most practical, that they may last for years to come.

them, in whatever way may be, most practical, that they may last for years to come.

Among these flags is an English royal standard, twenty-three by twenty-seven feet, captured at York, Canada, April 27, 1812, by a squadren under Isaac Cheuncey. Another is Perry's battle flag, on the blue field of which is inscribed the words in white letters. "Don't give up the http." the last words of Captain Lawrence, afterwhom the flagship was named, a trophy of the battle of Lake Erie. September 19, 1812, this flag being used as the signal for action by Commodore Perry. Another is the first United States ensign hoisted in Japan by Commodore Perry, at Uraga, July 14, 1355. Another is a Mexican ensign taken in Mazzit schooner Decatur, under Captain D. Diron

It is estimated that the average amount of time to be expended by needlewomen in the restoration of these flags will be fifteen hours per square foot. The proposed treatment will be durable. Nearly 1,000 years ago the wife of the Duke of Normandy, with the help of her attendants made some tapestries which are poses to mount these flags at Annapolis. They have been constantly under exhibit and have been transported to various exhibitions from time to time.
The committee is therefore of practically the unanimous epinfon that the appropriation asked for in this bill, is necessary for the performing of this work, and believes it should be done without delay. These trophies, now crumbling into dust, tell more than spoken or written words of great achievements of the American Navy in the past. They are allont witnesses of the bravery and heroism of the American sailor and an inspiration to present and future generations.
